

Chasing my Y-DNA part 46

Pre Union of the Crown map. Ca 1580.

Names Arbirlot and Ellot.

Post Union of Crown, with Burn of Elliot.

Before The Union of the Crown, lots (land with a measured perimeter) were measured in ell/el. After The Union of the Crown ca 1600 they were measured in acre. So that which was called an ell lot would after Union be an acre lot.

In Scotland in accordance to Arthur Eliott the name Elwald became Ellot.

Elwald, in Northern Northumbria, was used as a prefix for side/syde, or law; meaning a know, mound or hill. Because of the suffix to Elwald, of wald having the Nordic/German meaning of forest, the name Elwald in conjunction with its suffix, in northern Northumbria most occurred with the naming of a grove, large enough to hunt deer.

Where the Burn of Elliot is, Elwald a Northumbria name nor Ellot evolved from Elwald would be used for naming a locality in a region of Scone.

The above recorded before The Union shows no Elliot, but three Ellot. It is very unlikely an Ellot from Edinburgh, or and Ellot from Selkirk would have their name used for Ellot (burn river/stream).

Elliot or variations with a "y" or an "i" was not used as a name in Scotland until The Union.

In 1630 it is because of resentment to the English, the Scots in Ulster used the Elliot name with no “i” in it. It is suspect that those who used an “i” were English of Ulster.

Example of land being laid out in Scotland, by utilizing a pike (along with a compass) that is the length of a Scottish fall (6 ell) previous to the Union.

Utilizing the region of Slaughtree and Thorlishope, to identify fields (ell-lot/arce-lot), orchards (arbir/arbor lot), and mound (ell-know acre-know). The above is a Roy Military Point map from ca 1750.

 The history of the sufferings of the church of Scotland from the restoration ...
 By Robert Wodrow

William Armstrong in Acre-know, used in 1685 after the Union, when land is not being measured in ell, but is measured in acre.

lot (n.)  Old English hlot "object (anything from dice to straw, but often a chip of wood with a name inscribed on it) used to determine someone's share," also "what falls to a person by lot," from Proto-Germanic khlutom* (cf. Old Norse hlutr "lot, share," Old Frisian hlot "lot," Old Saxon hlot, Middle Dutch, Dutch lot, Old High German hluz "share of land," German Los; Old English hleotan "to cast lots, to foretell"), of unknown origin. The object was placed with others in a receptacle, which was shaken, the winner being the one that fell out first. Hence, to cast lots. In some cases the lots were drawn by hand. The word was adopted from Germanic into the Romanic languages (cf. lottery, lotto). Meaning "choice resulting from the casting of lots" first attested c.1200.

Sense of "plot of land" is first recorded 1630s (distribution of the best property in new settlements often determined by casting lots), that of "group, collection" is 1725, from notion of auction lots. The generalized sense of "great many" is first attested in 1812. To cast (one's) lot with another is to agree to share winnings.

The above has Arbirlot and Ellot on it, and is pre Union when measurement was done in Scottish ell.

Before the Union as today the flow of the above burn, went through ell lot. That was significant in it's day because not all land was laid out, land in those days used for farming in Scotland which was laid out would be called ellot. A stream that went through the ellot, would be called the Burn of Elliot.

The location of orchard laid out in lot, would be called an arbir/arbore lot. A kirk (church) in an area of orchards would likely be called Kirk of Arbirelot.

In the older pre Union map, K. Arbirelot, is across from Kelle C. (Kelly Castle). On the Roy Map, there is no Arbirelot, but what does one find on the map in the region of Arbirelot?
