1657 Gilbert Elliot (also Elliot) of Stobbs knight heir of William Ellet (also Elliot changed to Elliott) of Stobbs, now have land of Stobbs, Horsleyhill, Hunterhill (Hunter/Kerr/Rutherford). Lands of Baillillie.

The Elliots of Horsleyhill

Descendants of William Elliot of Lamiston, the 2nd son of Robert the 11th of Redheugh
William, who was alive in 1515, was said to have married the heiress of Horsleyhill

2. William, 5th laird of Horsleyhill, of whom hereafter.

3. Andrew (alias Dan) was, as we have seen, involved in the murder of Hugh Douglas in about 1547. On 1st July 1551 his father settled on him the lands of Baillillie, though reserving the life-rent to himself.<sup>1</sup> Andrew was dead by February 1563/64.

(Many Elliot were in feud with the Scott Clan, around 1564, and a number of recorded deaths are during that period)

Sir Gilbert Elliot (Eliott) is the son of William Elliot (Elliot/Eliott) which is the son of Gilbert Elliot/Eliott (the Elliot family around 1600 seemed to go towards Elliot then reverted to Elliot until about 1650) stepson of Gavin Elliot of Baillillie/Stobs of the Horsleyhill line. It should be noted in 1657 that Sir Gilbert does claim the lands of Stobbs, Baillillie, and Horsliehill, along with Hunterhill and other lands.

Do not think that Sir Gilbert Elliot of Stobbs has the same Y-DNA of his stepfather Gavin Elliot of Stobbs and Baillillie.

GILBERT ELLOT OF STOBS

Gilbert Ellet of Stobs was the 3rd son of Robert the 15th of Redheugh and his wife Jean Scott (of Buccleuch).

In many ways Gibbie's own career, and even his nickname, typified the revolutionary changes which took place in the Borders at the turn of the 17th century. The line of Stobs which Gibbie founded in Teviotdale was eventually to succeed the line of Redheugh as Chief of the Clan. But even in Gibbie's own lifetime the Clan lands in Teviotdale became of increasing importance as border raiding was suppressed and the Ellots turned their attention to the development of their own sheep flocks. Gibbie himself took an active part in raiding until the Union of the Crowns, being described as one on whom his brother, Robert of Redheugh, could rely.<sup>1</sup> But, after the succession of James VI to the English throne, he settled down to peaceful farming and later became one of the most prosperous of all the Teviotdale lairds.

An important factor in Gibbie's success must have been his kinship with his neighbours, the Scotts. His mother was a sister of Buccleuch and, early in his life, Gibbie allied himself more closely with this powerful House by his marriage to Margaret,* a daughter of Wat Scott of Harden† and a cousin of Buccleuch. He supported the Chief of the Scotts at the rescue of Kinmount Willie Armstrong from Carlisle Castle and was also mentioned in 1597 as taking the place of one of the Scotts (John Scott) as a hostage to Lord Scrope, the English Warden, after a raid on Gilsland. This connection with the Buccleuch must have stood Gibbie in good stead during the Pacification of the Borders, when his kinsfolk in Liddesdale were being harried by the King's Lieutenants and many of them executed and dispossessed of their lands.

Gibbie's stepfather, Gavin Ellet of Baillillie, and his mother, Jean Scott, owned extensive lands in Teviotdale and, as a young man, Gibbie lived at Stobs and helped his stepfather with the management of these properties. At their death he was left as trustee of all their estates. In 1608 Gibbie bought Stobs from his three half-sisters Esther, Dorothy and Jean. Although it took him seven years to pay his half-sisters the full purchase price on the lands, Gibbie possessed many other properties and, after buying Stobs, became a substantial land-owner and farmer; the 'gowden gartins' which he wore and by which he was so well known may have been the badge of this prosperity.

* Nicknamed 'Maggie Fendy' for her cleverness and efficiency.

† Wat Scott of Harden was a noted raider of the English and Margaret's dowry from her father was said to have been the product of one Harvest moon, and thus in keeping with the Harden motto – 'Reparabit cornua Phoebe' which might be translated as "The new moon will replenish the larder".

their death he was left as trustee of all their estates.<sup>6</sup> In 1608 Gibbie bought Stobs from his three half-sisters Esther, Dorothy and Jean.<sup>7</sup> Although it took him seven years to pay his half-sisters the full purchase price of the lands,<sup>8</sup> Gibbie possessed many other properties* and, after buying Stobs, became a substantial land-owner and farmer; the 'gowden gartins' which he wore and by which he was so well known may have been the badge of this prosperity.

Gibbie died on 24th January 1634<sup>12</sup> leaving by his wife Margaret Scott a large family:—

1. William of Stobs, the eldest son, was the first of the family to spell his name 'Eliott' (in a letter dated 17th December 1641).<sup>1</sup> He married Elizabeth, eldest daughter of William Douglas yr. of Cavers, 29th November 1621<sup>2</sup> and it was their eldest son, Gilbert, who succeeded to the chieftainship of the Clan from Robert of Redheugh. William was a strong Covenanter and represented Roxburgh in the Parliament of 1641. Like most Scots he at first supported the English parliamentarians (the Roundheads) against King Charles and was a member of the committee for war in 1644, 1645 and 1646; but later he became alarmed at the power of Cromwell and by 1648 turned strongly in favour of the King and was very active on his behalf.<sup>3</sup> The Scottish revolt against Cromwell was, however, eventually crushed and in 1651 a military government under General Monk was imposed upon Scotland. William died in July 1654<sup>4</sup> leaving issue:—

(1) Gilbert of Stobs (later Sir Gilbert).

(2) Archibald, who received a Crown Charter (30th July 1647) of the lands of Craigend and Deanfoot in the barony of Minto.<sup>5</sup> He was dead by 1683 leaving issue<sup>6</sup>:—

i. Gilbert of Craigend.

ii. John.<sup>7</sup>

(3) Gavin, who married firstly Barbara Creighton<sup>8</sup> and secondly Jean Nicolson.<sup>9</sup> His Will was proved on 23rd February 1684 and he left issue a son:—

i. Gavin, who was mentioned in the Disposition of 1687.<sup>10</sup>

(4) William of Grange, who was first mentioned on the 18th May 1659 as a witness to a charter.<sup>11</sup> Presumably he never married or, if he did, had no surviving male issue as the Pedigree of c. 1704 states 'Elliot of Grange now extinct was a lawful brother of ye Sir Gib. Elliot of Stobs'.

* A list of Gibbie's purchases is set out after the account of his children.

* A list identical with the above, but in a different order, containing a few more names, and bearing date 3 Feb. 31 Hen. VIII., was forwarded by Wharton to the Council on the 3 Dec. 1541. See Hamilton Papers, I. 136.

In the 1540 resettling, it seems like Scots of the name Rutherford were resettled in England, and with the services of Clement Crosier of Stobs, and Robert (Robin) Elwald of Redheugh, we were able to gain some by the name Hunter. Hoped it worked out well.

A could place to put the Hunter, and a hill known for hunting Hunthill.

Basically states as previously indicated that William, Robert and Andro (alias Dand) Elliot of Baillillie, are brothers. It should be noted that John Priestman, calling himself John Hunter of Newbottle Abbey near Edinburgh, could very easily be the John Preston of Edinburgh.

The first mention of Stobs occurs in the year 1544, when it was in the possession of one Clemyt Crossier.<sup>1</sup> It subsequently passed into the hands of the Glaidstanes, one of whom sold it to Gavin Elliot, the first laird of Stobs of that name. That this Gavin was one of the Elliots of Horsliehill has now been conclusively proved by evidence contained in a reported case, to which he was a party, concerning the tutorship to a certain William Elliot, described as "oy" (i.e. grandson) and heir to William Elliot of Horsliehill. The claimants to the post were William Elliot of Horsliehill, the pupil's uncle, and Gavin Elliot, who is described as of Stobs, brother of the deceased William Elliot of Horsliehill, and therefore grand-uncle to the pupil. Gavin's contention that William, the father's brother, though more nearly related, was legally incapable of acting, owing to his being under 25 years of age, was sustained by the Court.<sup>2</sup> Gavin was a son of Robert Elliot of Horsliehill (dead in 1564) and a younger brother of William Elliot of Horsliehill, along with whom he was tried in 1564 for the

ANDRO ELLOTT OF HIS LORD, ROBERT ELLOTT, JUNIOR, OF TYNEDALE, HAD

Since Clemmentis Hob (Clement Crosier's Hob (Robert) Elwald/Ellot) had a son named Dand, and Clement Crosier of Stobbs had a nephew named Hob Elwald, and Andro (Dand) Ellot of Baillillie died early, and had his difficulties by killing a Douglas, it is felt that Clemmentis Hob is the son of Andro (Dand) Ellot of Baillillie brother to Robert, and William of Horsleyhill and half brother Gavin, of Baillillie and Stobs.
