as one man would have a piece of land as his very own with in a acre larger than a whole village and its farms in Germany.

The Germans were unfortunate in the matter of sickness and this made some of the settlers dissatisfied so that eventually they removed from the upper settlements on Hard Labor creek to sections lower down where many of their countrymen had been located for several years. Such colonies as those in Orangeburg, Lexington and a part of Newberry were almost entirely populated with Germans. The dissatisfied ones from the upper area were soon happy in the communities of their countrymen in the latter areas.

But many remained in the original areas here where land had been granted. In and around Troy, eastward in the Callison section of Greenwood county and especially in the Kirksey and McKendree Methodist Church sections there were for years families descended from the German Protestants who came into this section from Charleston and settled under the direction and oversight of the royal colony of South Carolina. Some names disappeared by intermarriage (as Adolph), but among prominent families of the original German group were Durst (Dorst), Timmerman, Ouzts (Utz), Zimmerman, Dorn, Strom, Clegg, Corley and others.

The hundreds and hundreds of descendants here, both direct and indirect by marriage with other nationalities, left a profound impress in the years that followed. They were people of sound character and sturdy bodies, honest and sound in views on public matters.

Descendants of these pioneers and patriots do well to honor their memories and to preserve the family history and traditions for the delight and benefit of those to come who should ever be proud of their forebears.

HISTORY OF RUSH REUNION AND DAVID RUSH MEMORIAL

1946 RUSH REUNION

Several years planning for a Rush reunion became a reality the second Sunday in August, 1946. Many of the descendants were interested but World War II was in progress and it was advisable and appropriate to wait until the war was over before calling a meeting for organization so the summer of 1946 seemed to be the opportune time to announce that there would be a reunion of the descendants of David Rush and his wife Margaretha Rosena Adolph Rush at Bold Spring Baptist Church, Aug. 11, 1946.

About three hundred enthusiastic descendants attended the meeting. The organization was perfected and by-laws adopted with working plans for projects to be undertaken.

By-laws and minutes of meeting will explain the aims of the Rush Reunion.

ROBERT MARION RUSH

Robert Marion Rush, the first President of Rush Reunion, was born December 6, 1901—the eldest son of Francis Pickens Rush and Mary Allie Pruitt Rush. He married Mary Tolbert, December 25, 1930. They have three sons: Wayne Rush, Patrick Rush and David Rush.

He had always been interested in his family tree and it was fitting that he should be the first leader of the Rush organization. He served six years in that capacity and did outstanding work—contributed generously of his means and inspired others to lend a helping hand.

He lives at Troy, S. C., and is a prosperous business dealer, pastor of the school, Deacon of the Baptist Church there, and an outstanding citizen in every respect. Surely the mantle of his devoted parents fell upon his shoulders as he is carrying on in a manner that reflects the training received from them.

land he was also allowed a bounty provision on his services in the Revolution. The "bounty" depended in monetary value on the length of his military service and the rank of the applicant.

Patriot soldiers from a number of the other colonies had spent some of the period of their Revolutionary service in South Carolina, for important military actions had taken place here. Some of the former soldiers who had become acquainted with South Carolina at that way now came back to make the permanent home in this State.

Plans to the post-Revolutionary development, which brought a rush of new settlers into the northwest corner of the State, two major real estate developments in this area had been sponsored by the State with two groups of immigrants.

The first of these was the settlement of "poor French Protestants"—Huguenots—who were sent up from Charleston in 1764 to a location centering in what came to be their town of New Bordeaux.

The other was a settlement in 1765 of "poor German Protestants" in Londonborough township on Hard Labor creek. A group of Protestants from the German Palatinate had arrived in Charleston in 1764 after many disasters—leaving their native land to seek homes and freedom in the New World, they had been robbed of their financial resources by an adventurer who falsely promised to lead them, had been stranded for a while in London, and when they finally made the voyage to America they were sadly reduced in numbers by sickness fatal to man; of the band both on board the ship and after landing. It took courage, faith and hard work for them to get established in their new home.

These Palatine Germans had sold their all and started to Carolina originally under the direction of one Colonel John Henry Christian Stumpell. This man turned out to have been a rascal. He brought the band of Germans to London and there deserted them with all the cash they had turned over to him. The Germans were foolish in that they turned over their money to a man about whom they knew little. He promised much but gave nothing.

After a time in London, the poor German Protestants found friends in the English government and among London merchants through whose aid ship passage was made available, and they reached Charleston in 1764. There were about five hundred Germans—men, women and children—who made the voyage in two ships. Forty-five died from sickness on the sea voyage and after arrival in Charleston and in the new settlement. This was almost ten per cent of the total who sailed from London. South Carolina's Acting Governor William Bull sent them early in 1765 to the lands set aside for their settlement in the Up Country in an area that was called Londonborough in honor of the Londoners who had helped them.

The Germans apparently divided themselves into two bodies. One selected lands in and around the McKendree Methodist Church community in what later became Edgefield county; and the other selected a ridge east and south, east of Hard Labor creek. Mountains of earth may still be seen in the woods along the road to Powder Spring on the present Greenwood connector, indicating the site of their early huts. These built a log church in the highway for use about on the location of Whiteoak. This was the Lutherans' church of St. George.

Among the leaders of the German settlers were Peter Dege, a brewer of Petersburg, and Henry Adolph, who left provisions and the money or the men settlers had given over to him were sent down to Charleston to petition the authorities for help. A visitor in 1767 in the settlement on Cuffeetown creek described the poor physical condition of the settlers whom he saw, and their appearance and symptoms indicate the group had become victims of malaria.

But despite such handicaps the flow of newcomers continued and the hardy pioneers began to make headway. Game was plentiful; some crops were planted with profit; fruit trees and vegetable gardens, sometimes planted with care brought from the old country, were in evidence.

Into this large area of fresh land, good soil for the most part, a delightful climate and many other attractions, soon came thousands of young and amorous men, eager to accumulate property and to make a home for themselves and families.

One of these was David Rush, who according to family tradition, as set forth in this book, came from Pennsylvania to the new settlements of western North Carolina. With him, the tradition also has it, was a brother Daniel Rush, who however did not remain. Both young men, it is further said, had been in the troops under General Nathanael Greene at the siege of Ninety-Six and were so pleased with the country that when the war was over and they were honorably discharged they came back to western South Carolina and received grants of land in the country they had remembered and desired in their homes.

David Rush appears to have been either of the Quaker persuasion or of a Congregationalist group of peace-lovers who came with William Penn to the present great State of Pennsylvania.

The marriage of David Rush to Margheretta Rosena Adolph of the Palatinate Germans of Hard Labor and Cuffeetown creeks was for their great number of descendants a most fortunate union.

It appears most likely, as shown in the text of this family history, that Margheretta Rosena Adolph, daughter of Hendrick (Henry) and Maria Dorst Adolph, was born in the family home in the new country. She and David Rush would appear also to have moved from one home to another as their family grew and their possessions multiplied.

To the Germans in their new homes it had all been new and strange, and they had had to learn many things. In the old country they and their fathers had lived in small villages in the Rhine valley and other valleys working apart from their home in those villages to work their little farms of the provisions made by the act of Congress passed July 7th 1838 entitled "An act granting half pay and pensions to certain widows;" That she is the widow of Benjamin Rush late of Madison County, who was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and a pensioner for some years from the State of Virginia - by his relies upon the affidavits of Michael Utley and Robert H^c Callister to sustain the petition and this claim.

She further declares that she was married to the said
Benjamin Rush on the 5th day of March in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty two; that he has lived, the aforesaid Benjamin Rush died on the 13th day leaving the service, but that the marriage took place previous to the first of January seventeen hundred and ninety two.

State of Virginia
County of Culpeper 3 Febr

Be it known that before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for the County aforesaid, duly authorized by law to administer oaths, personally appeared Benjamin Weaver and Isabell his wife who intermarried with Elizabeth Rush, Eliza Sick and Mildred his wife, who intermarried with Mildred Rush, both families of Culpeper County, and Thomas Rush of Rappahannock County and State aforesaid, who being first duly sworn according to law, state that they are the only living children and heirs of Benjamin Rush and Jemima his wife late of the County of Madison and State aforesaid, as will appear by the ancient family record of their parents, herewith presented, and that they believe the United States are still indebted, under existing laws, for the pension that was due under the application heretofore made, by Edmund Brownes, as the agent of Jemima Rush widow of Benjamin Rush, both of said parents now dead, by a reference to our family record, and they are the only living children and heirs interested as claimants in the pension for which application was made for before us aforesaid, and we constitute and appoint Wm. Henry, Jr. of Rappahannock County Virgin^y and true and lawful attorney, with irrevocable power to examine into, investigate, and establish the claim for said pension, and to all acts necessary thereon.

We do further swear, that in consequence of the death of our mother Jemima Rush, in the year 1846, and also, of the death in 1849 of her agent, Edmund Brownes, we have not been able to get from said agent any papers pertaining to the claim of our deceased mother, whatever, and in consequence we could not procure the requisite evidence until now; and we now furnish a copy of the act of the Virginia Legislature passed January 1st 1820 placing Benjamin Rush of the County of Madison and old soldier of the Revolution on the pension list,

That he has been to the expense of sending him to visit his relatives and the said ward also desired the guardian to furnish him money to buy town property in Oregon and to furnish money to buy cattle. That this guardian has refused all such speculations. That said guardian is having a difficult time to place his said ward and that his own children will not keep him and he has been unable to get him into a home. That said ward has become a public nuisance. Wherefore this defendant asks the court to dismiss the petition filed to terminate said guardianship at plaintiff's cost and that said guardianship be continued not only over the property of the said John R. Rush but over his person as well.

F. F. Fuller, Attorney for Defendant Petition duly verified by Earl T. Hoover, and sworn to before a Notary Public September 28, 1931.
After the above case had been tried to the Jury in the January, 1932 term of the District Court of Ringgold County, Iowa, the defendant herein files motion for a directed verdict, showing that the lack of proof that the said guardianship should be terminated and that the evidence on the part of the plaintiff shows conclusively that the guardianship should be continued and that a directed verdict should be returned in favor of the defendant, and that on the same date the Judge of the said District Court directe the jury in said case to find a verdict in favor of the defendant and find the plaintiff John R. Rush is at this time a person of unsound mind.
Plaintiff's petition to terminate guardianship is dismissed and guardianship is ordered continued to all of which the plaintiff is given an exception.

January 20, 1932:

August 20, 1931:

Petition to terminate Guardianship, shows that Earl T. Hoover was appointed guardian of his property on April 27, 1929, and that said Hoover qualified and that he has since his appointment had charge of the property and that he now has full charge thereof. That the said ward prays for the dismissal of said Earl T. Hoover, as his guardian for the reason that he is of sound mind and that he is able to look after his own property and in doing so may save the expense of the guardianship, etc. Wherefore, the petitioner asks that the guardianship be terminated and his property be restored to him as provided by law and that said guardian shall account for all of said property in his possession and make a final report of the same and be discharged.

August 20, 1931:

It is ordered that John R. Rush shall cause a written notice to be served on Earl T. Hoover which notice shall state that he has filed a petition in this court asking that his guardianship of his property be terminated and if he desires to resist said application he shall file his answer on or before October 1, 1931 at 9 A.M. and that said notice shall be served on or before September 15, 1931.

Homer A. Fuller, Judge.

September 8, 1931:

Notice to terminate the guardianship of Earl T. Hoover shows said notice directed to Earl T. Hoover: You are hereby notified that John R. Rush has filed his petition in the clerk's office asking that your guardianship over his property be terminated and by order of the court said hearing has been set for trial October 1, 1931, at 9 A.M. at said court house. Now unless you appear therefor and defend or file answer before said time fixed for hearing default will be entered against you and judgment entered terminating your guardianship of his property. For further and particulars see plaintiff's petition now on file.

from Ross County information credited to you I changed the spelling of John Hagan Rush from Hagen and just noted that probably you gave me information that William Rush married Jane Hagen. Son John surely is named for her family. Which is correct?

The 'FAMILY NUMBER (MRIN) SORTED LIST' is a list of all the families I have in this file - 423 in all. The MRIN number is the number that the computer has assigned to the family and tends to indicate the order they were entered. However, I can't explain how your family became "14" when it was the last of 423 entered! When I looked up on the screen and saw 14, I was much alarmed for fear I had lost 410 families. I went to an old index and discovered the computer had by-passed number 14 and after 410 entries went back and picked it up. Incidentally, when first started using this program I had nearly 600 names of Rush family entered and lost them all - over a month's work down the drain. I have lots of back up files now.

Out of these 423 families I have included family sheets for three - 1, 9, & 279. Printouts on all make a very huge book. Computer program gives you a choice as to printing out family sheets with or without history notes. Once we get some of omissions and errors out, it would be nice to give copies to some of Geneology Libraries.

Most of my recent efforts in writing have been to my "Elliott" Line and feel I have that History nearly 90% complete - needing to gather up pictures. We started having Elliott Gatherings in 1981 and every two years and considerable history has surfaced from those. I have about 300 pages compiled which includes a number of letters dating back to 1858. While enthused with families compiled on our RUSH LINE, we are much in need of more history on most of the families. A group of names and dates is not my idea of a Family History. Ideally would like to see history information on every family in the file.

I must close. Again I hope this finds you well. Any additional information that you can direct this way will be appreciated.

With love from a fourth cuzin,

Dear Helen,

If this reaches you, I am sure you will be shocked to hear from me after many years and ^{hope} this finds you well. I have been intending to write since getting back to the "search" after retirement four years ago. Last week I noted some material you had entered in a Ross County, Ohio, genealogy book published in 1979. I didn't depict which of your lines were in Ross County - I have been researching 'Signor', 'Purnell', and 'Mark' lines that lived there.

The time requirements encouraged me to postpone my genealogy research from 1970 until retirement at the end of 1982. I gave Richard Lawrence material that you had provided me along with material I had put together several years ago and understand that he has been in contact with you on our 'Rush' line. I finally met him when we stopped at his home in Arkansas in 1983. He has been an overnight house guest each of the past three years.

Upon retirement I purchased a computer for the word processor and it has become my magic typewriter. It is a clone of the IBM.PC. I later purchased Genealogy Software from the Mormon Church at Salt Lake City and started entering the Rush Family members with considerable information coming from Richard. In the past year they revised the software and I purchased their new product which is much superior to the old. It does several magic things - even told me that we are 'fourth' cousins. I have included a copy of the DESCENDANTS CHART for JAMES RUSH b 1760 that should make an excellent outline for a "RUSH FAMILY HISTORY". You can find your spot on the last page - page 17. If you review this carefully, you can detect who I do not have in my file and I WILL GLADLY ENTER ANY DESCENDANT OF JAMES RUSH IF SOME ONE WILL PROVIDE THE INFORMATION. The DESCENDANTS CHARTS can be printed out for a maximum of ten generations. It appears that I have only eight generations in this file. To help you decode this chart note your name on page 17. The 6 indicates you are the sixth generation, the 1193 is the RIN number the computer assigned to you and the date following is your birth date. Of course, the letter 's' proceeding your father's name indicates spouse of your mother who proceeds him. Your number 1193 indicates I now have nearly 1200 individuals in our RUSH FAMILY FILE - all of whom are listed in the "NAME SORTED LIST". Each can be quickly located by use of the 'RIN' number that appears after their names or more slowly by their names for corrections and additional information. As each individual is entered, one is given the opportunity to enter history notes and source data. Incidentally,

Your America

BY CLARK KINNAIRD

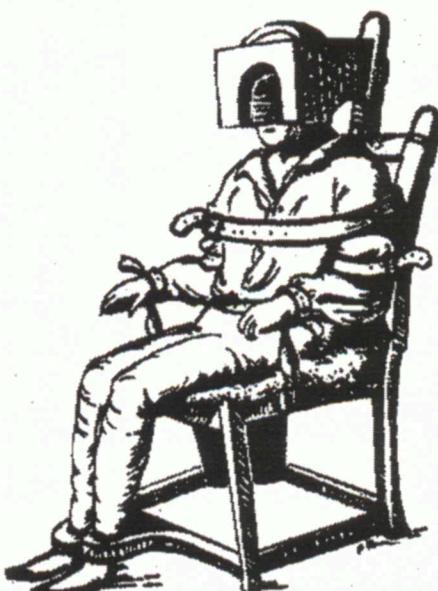

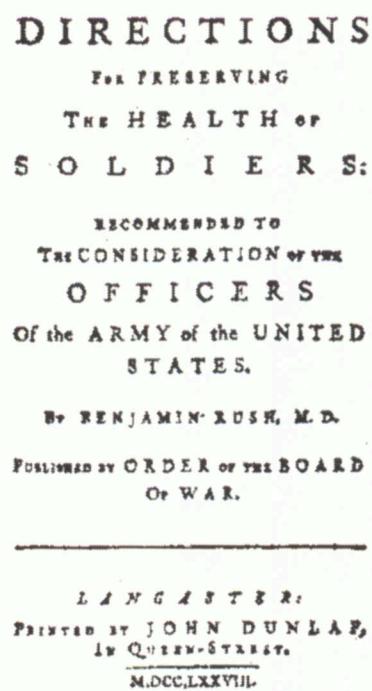

Next week brings the 220th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Rush, physician, patriot, educator, humanitarian, who laid a cornerstone of military medical care that saved the lives of inestimable numbers of soldiers and sailors.

Rush, born Jan. 4, 1746, in Pennsylvania, studied medicine at Philadelphia before earning an M. D. degree at the University of Edinburgh. Joining the patriot forces in 1776, this signer of the Declaration of Independence for Pennsylvania composed a pamphlet, "Directions for Preserving the Health of Soldiers," and had it published at his expense for distribution among the Continental Army and militia.

There being few physicians and surgeons in the Army, Rush visited units in the field to instruct officers in the military logistical, as well as humanitarian practicality, of giving close attention to clothing, water, food, sanitary facilities, wounds or illnesses of their men.

Two of Rush's Philadelphia colleagues, Drs. John Morgan and William Shippen, labored as directors-general of hospitals to reduce Army losses from wounds and disease. All three were associated in the Pennsylvania Hospital, the pioneer medical school in the country. Rush had the greatest influence of the three. His research and writing revolutionized medical thought in the New World.

Notable among Rush writings was "Medical Inquiries and Observations Upon the Diseases of the Mind." (1798)—an approach to psychiatry before Sigmund Freud was born. Rush instituted the first public dispensary for the poor, and was organizer of the Pennsylvania Society for Promoting Abolition of Slavery, the earliest such reform organization.

"Tranquilizing chair," or shock treatment, designed by Rush.
